

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An implant assembly including a main implant and a secondary implant to fix the main implant in a relative position. The secondary implant being passable into a unprepared bone structure to securely fix the main implant in place. The secondary implant including a conduit to flow a flowable material that is able to securely interconnect the secondary implant with the bone structure.